May Finish Reaming Some Time Tomorrow

Casing Was Only Seventy Feet From Bottom of Hole at Quitman Oil Well at Midnight.

Indications today were that reaming at the Quitman oil well would be completed sometime tomorrow, permitting a resumption of straight drilling from the 1,190-fcot depth.

All except seventy feet of the reaming had been completed at midnight last night and the eigh-inch casing sunk to that depth. The process is tedious because the old hole has been filled with cavings and the cuttings from the reaming.

G. H. Rose, drilling contractor, has expressed the opinion that an oil sand may be found just below a layer of limestone to which the drill had penetrated when the reaming and lowering of casing was begun.

State Indemnity Fund for Cattlemen Gone

No Further Payments to Be Made Until Appropriation Is Released. —County Still Pays.

State funds for payment of indemnity to owners of cattle condemned because of tuberculosis have been exhausted, according to a notice received by County Clerk Fred Smith. The Legislature appropriated funds, but they have been held up by the governor.

The county is continuing to pay its share of the indemnities, which are divided equally between the county and state. Two-thirds of the value of the animal condemned is paid.

Water Tower Gets Coat of Black Paint

Two Stack Painters From Omaha Tackle Job Which Daunts Local Artists.

If Homer Croy could only see the water tower a few days from now!

Maryville's most famous landmark is being given a fresh coat of paint and the big, steel tank soon will be restored to a glistening black.

The task of painting the water tower is one shunned by local painters, and the job is being done by two professional smokestack artists from Omaha. The city furnishes the paint, and the brush wielders get $100 for their trouble.

"And believe me, they earn it," declares Mayor W. O. Garrett.

SAYS TARIFF CHIEF ISSUE

G. O. P. WILLING TO ACCEPT CHALLENGE WATSON SAYS

TALKS OF PROSPERITY

Achievement of Present Congress and Administration Will Not Be Forgotten Indiana Republican Says

By Senator James A. Watson, Republican of Indiana, leader of the conservative Republicans in the Senate. Written for International News.

Washington, July 17.—The Republican party is entirely willing to accept the challenge of the minority in Congress to make the tariff the dominating issue in the Congressional elections in November.

The tariff will be the high note of this campaign, chiefly because of its relations to the farm problem and agricultural legislation.

The American people will resent any plan to endanger our prosperity of our principal industries by turning down a tariff and will, in my opinion, support a Republican proposal for sane legislation which will permit the farmers to obtain fair benefits by tariffs placed on agricultural products.

There will be a diversity of issues in this campaign on local and other matters important and national in character.

The enviable record of the Republican Congress cannot be overlooked and it will play an important part in the campaign.

Under a Republican administration and a Republican Congress the country enjoys unprecedented prosperity. The people have been given an economic administration of government and a noticeable reduction in the burdens of war-time taxation.

These are the achievements which will be remembered by the American people when they go to the polls in November.

The Republican party itself has shown a sympathetic attitude toward labor and the problems of the workingmen. The present Congress enacted the railroad meditation bill, initiated at the request of labor and established a series of meditation boards for the settlement of all disputes by arbitration.

Law enforcement will also be an important issue.

Hog Prices to Stay High This Summer

Slight Falling Off May Come Next Winter, Says U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Indicated stocks are somewhat smaller than last year and hog prices this summer and fall probably will be maintained, the department stated.

Gets 5¾ Pound Carp in River Near Arkoe

Another big fish "catch" was reported to the Democrat-Forum today. This time it concerns C. W. Payne, Western Union telegraph operator. Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Payne caught a carp weighing five and three-quarters pounds, in addition to three others weighing not quite as much. Just to prove that the carp was a big one, Mr. Payne exhibited it on a pair of scales at the express office. The big catch was made in the 102 river, just southeast of Arkoe.

DRY FORCES NOW UNITED

REREDITH-COCKRELL COMPROMISE IS EFFECTED.

NOW A SOLID FRONT

Meredith Now Candidate For Short Term With Cockrell Running For Long Term Office.

St. Louis, July 17.—Solidification of the dry vote in an open move to defeat efforts of anti-prohibition forces in the United States Senatorial race in Missouri was seen today in the withdrawal of Judge Ewing Cockrell of Warrensburg for the short term and Willis H. Meredith of Poplar Bluff for the long term.

Both candidates, backed by the drys, have been entered in the race for both the long and short terms in opposition to Congressman Harry B. Hawes, wet candidate for the Senatorial toga.

Leaders of the drys for the last two weeks have made several attempts to have one of the candidates withdraw from the race but without success until the plan pust announced was decided upon.

With this accomplished, the drys can now concentrate on Cockrell and Meredith for the long and short terms. Dry forces were given a breath of relief following the announcement.

St. Louis, July 17.—Announcement was made here last night of the withdrawal of Willis H. Meredith as candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator for the long term and of Ewing Cockrell as candidate for the short term nomination. Notice of withdrawal was sent to the office of the secretary of state at Jefferson City.

The withdrawals, which were brought about in response to requests by the Missouri Women's Christian Temperance Union, will have the effect of presenting a solid front among dry voters against Harry B. Hawes, running on a wet plank.

Under the arrangement, Hawes will be opposed by Cockrell for the long term nomination, and by Meredith for the short term nomination. The dry voters will be able to cast their ballots for both Cockrell and Meredith and against the wet candidate without splitting the vote.

The short term, for which Mr. Meredith remains in the contest against Hawes, begins immediately after the election in November, and ends March 4, 1927. The long term for which Mr. Cockrell will oppose Hawes, begins March 4, 1927 and is for six years.

The Negotiations Made Public

Announcement of the withdrawals was given out here tonight by the two dry candidates and Mrs. Nelle Burger, president of the Missouri Women's Christian Temperance Union, who also made public correspondence carried on between her and the principals, pior to last night's announcement.

A letter to Meredith and Cockrell from the temperance leader, which was followed by the action of the candidates reads in part:

I appeal to you as men, whom I believe to be too big to permit your own ambition to stand in the way of your duty to the people.

It must be plain to you, and it appears to be to others, that, with both of you in the race, running for both long and short term, neither can be assured the nomination. With one of you out, or one running for the short term and one for the long, your nomination will, in my opinion, be certain.

In the hope of giving the temperance people of the state the opportunity to express their convictions without voting against each other, I earnestly request that one of you withdraw for the long term and the other as the candidate for the short term.

I appreciate very fully what it means to you gentlemen to make such a sacrifice, but I ask it in the interest of the cause upon which we all agree.

The Meredith Response.

Mr. Meredith, in his reply, agreed to withdraw. His letter follows:

I have come to the conclusion that Mrs. Burger and other of my friends are right in their convictions that the continuance of both Judge Cockrell and myself in the race for United States senate for both the long and short term jeopardizes principles and causes which both of us advocate.

Since Judge Cockrell has declined to withdraw as a candidate for the long term, I have decided to do so . . . Principles are more vital than any length of term or any personal ambition.

Mr. Cockrell, in his reply, said:

I heartily approve your letter and Mr. Meredith's action, and for many reasons, I am glad to realize that we do not only have the right on our side but your idea, carried out, is the most important achievement in practical politics of this state.

Your plan changes a discouraging situation into one that is the best that could possibly happen. Mr. Hawes now can no more win this nomination than Coolidge could be nominated for President by a Democratic national convention.

YET CHEER IN RATE DECISION

COMMISSION'S RULING TO BE HELD OPEN AWHILE

FINANCIALLY SOUND

Many Inequalities May Exist and These Should Be Corrected, Interstate Commerce Commission Believes.

Washington, July 17.—The action of the Interstate Commerce Commission in refusing permission to western railroads to increase the freight rates approximately 5 per cent came as a distinct surprise to them as well as to certain security holders of these roads which had appealed for a horizontal increase of from 15 to 20 per cent, it was learned today.

They have the satisfaction, however, of having the ruling held open for further consideration in connection with the commission's investigation of the general freight rate structure of the country as authorized by the Hoch Smith resolution adopted by Congress in January, 1925.

The commission, in effect, held that the western railroads were not confronted with a financial emergency and were not only financially but physically sound.

There are many inequalities in the rate structure existing in portions of the western district, the commissioners said, and these should be corrected.

The burden, however, is upon the railroads to take the steps necessary to correct improper rate relations as they may be found to exist "and to supply revenue diversion by initiating suitable changes in rates."

U. S. Higher Court's Ruling Favors Nations

Sentence of Eighteen Months In Jail and Fine of $3,333 Reversed by Circuit Court of Appeals.

St. Louis, July 17.—Sentence of eighteen months in jail and the fine of $3,333, passed by Federal Judge Faris on Heber Nations, convicted of receiving part of "protection" funds paid by the Griesedick Brewery Co., was reversed today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Raymond Griesedick, owner of the brewery, and Charles S. Prather, former state food and drug commissioner, who pleaded guilty, testified against Nations at his trial. Griesedick testified that he paid Prather $1 a case on beer sold for "protection," and Prather, in turn, testified that two-thirds of the money went to Nations.

The court held that Judge Faris is not disqualifying himself when Nations filed an affidavit declaring that "the Judge was biased and erred and so ordered the trial."

Mellon to Europe "Only for Vacation"

Denies Rumors He Is Taking Trip For Official Business—J. P. Morgan Also Sails.

New York, July 17.—Interviewed before sailing today on the S. S. Majestic, Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of Treasury, denied rumors that he was taking the trip to Europe for any other purpose than his annual vacation.

"I am not going over there on an official mission," he said, "and I won't see any foreign representatives while I am abroad. Neither will I see General Lincoln C. Andrews in England."

Mr. Mellon was optimistic regarding the outlook for business and not at all apprehensive regarding the future.

J. P. Morgan, head of the Morgan & Co. banking house, also sailed on the Majestic for his usual holiday abroad.

BRIAND AGAIN IS VOTED OUT

LACK OF CONFIDENCE IS SHOWN, 288 TO 243.

FINANCE PLAN FAILS

Storm Session Follows Demand of Caillaux for Dictatorial Powers On Money Matters.

Paris, July 17.—The government of Premier Briand resigned this evening after defeat in the Chamber of Deputies.

The chamber voted lack of confidence 288 to 243. Defeat came when the demand of finance minister Caillaux for full powers was put to a vote of confidence.

Briand's cabinet fell after stormy scenes in the Chamber in which Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber and leader of the radical bloc, made a bitter attack on the premier and government, charging that Caillaux wished to force a dictatorship on France.

Caillaux's bill extending the powers of the finance minister was designed to give wider facilities for checking the fall of the franc. France's major political and economis problem.

Paris, July 17.—Finance Minister Joseph Caillaux's demand for dictatorial powers to settle the financial situation in France struck a snag in the Chamber of Deputies today when M. Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber, abandoned the chair and took his place on the rostrum as a deputy to caution against the granting of the demands.

"I have temporarily abandoned the presidency for the purpose of pointing out the danger of granting what the government asks," said Herriot. "M. Caillaux's demands are a complete upset for the code Napoleon does not permit us as delegates of the people to delegate our power to others."

Herriot then accused Premier Briand of not having a proper and complete understanding of the financial situation. In support of his statement, Herriot claimed the premier's lack of knowledge of fiscal affairs had been proved by his inability to compare the exigencies of the situation with the exigencies in parliament.

Paris, July 17.—The battle of the franc goes to the Chamber of Deputies today. Finance Minister Caillaux points to the falling franc and will ask the chamber to vote him dictatorial powers to deal with the situation and will ask that the powers be voted before noon so that he may bolster the franc prior to the opening of the Bourse on Monday.

With the passage of this legislation, if it is passed, M. Caillaux will proceed immediately to ask for the ratification of the debt settlement with the United States and Great Britain as a preliminary to securing foreign credits.

M. Caillaux, it is learned, has been assured informally from Washington that the United States will not make any concessions in the Mellon-Berenger accord and he will advise the Chamber that France can only lose by delaying action.

Nickel Plate Road to Operate C. A. S.

Will Take Over Operation of Chicago, Attica Southern for Period of Four Months.

Washington, July 17.—The Nickel Plate Railroad, the Van Swearingen property, will operate the Chicago Attica Southern Railroad for a period of four months pending the development of other matters involved in the Van Swearingen unification plan, it was learned today.

The Van Swearingens notified Commissioner Meyer, who conducted the hearing on the original Van Swearingen merger plan, that J. J. Bernet, president of the Nickel Plate, had been in conference with the managers of the Chicago Attica and Southern and that a formal application for the operation of this road by the Nickel Plate would shortly be made to the commission.

CHEAP POWER FOR SALE.

Anyone who wants power cheap might apply now at Muscle Shoals, Ala. The government has 2,000,000 kilowat-hours a day to sell there, and may soon have more. The price is two-fifths of a cent per kilowatt.

That sounds attractive to the millions of domestic consumers who pay 5 to 10 cents a kilowatt for their electricity, and also to thousands of industrial consumers who get wholesale rates for the current they use.

The Alabama company which has been taking the Muscle Shoals power, however, says this is too high. It has paid only one-fifth of a cent per kilowatt hour so far, and objects to the raise insisted on by the army engineers in charge of the project. So the power goes begging for buyers.

The company in question is now depending on its own power, obtained from steam plants, with coal as fuel. If electric power can really be produced cheaper from coal than two-fifths of a cent per kilowatt, the fact is worth knowing. A good many cities, with accessible coal supply, would feel like starting their own power plants to supply local needs. "White coal" would get a black eye.

There may be shrewd business in the situation, though. The company referred to happens to be one of thirteen associated southern power companies that want a 50-year lease on Muscle Shoals.

A CORRECTION.

Editor Democrat-Forum.

In regard to the article appearing in the Democrat-Forum and Tribune of July 16th, 1926, headed "Leaders tell Students Side." I was misquoted in regard to a number of things which I wish to correct.

Wilber Williams said in part: "If this matter is railroaded along until the last week of the summer term that approximately 1200 students ought to be willing to sign an agreement never to return to the College again until the matter relating to Dean Colbert is satisfactorily settled."

The only thing he advocated for action at the present time was to petition the Governor asking for a full investigation and the suggestion was put in the form of a motion but was defeated.

I did not say a word to the student body for or against the petition to the Governor.

The spirit of my little talk was that it took time to get any worth-while thing across. By that I meant that it would take time to settle the matters which have caused so much confusion among the student body at the College this summer quarter. The first of which was the action of the Board of Regents in regard to Dean George H. Colbert.

I said in part: "I have been working for a degree for a good many years and I may work a long time yet before I get it. I do not believe that there is a man or woman in this meeting that does not wish to see this College prosper. It rests with you, you can make or break this institution and unless these matters are cleared up by the close of the summer term I greatly fear there will be a decided falling off in the enrollment when school opens next September."

I did not enumerate any of the matters that had been causing the confusion but I meant it to include the suspension of Dr. Fred Keller and Burt W. Loomis. The charges that degrees and diplomas have been issued at times in irregular ways has never been answered to my satisfaction nor to the satisfaction of a number of other students to whom I have talked.

What Other Editors Say

Too Easy for the Criminal.

That the criminal must pay the price for his deeds and that the criminally inclined must be made to know that swift and certain punishment will follow wrong doing if property and human life are to be secure are accepted facts among those who have a genuine concern for the welfare of society. There is a direct connection between the prevalence of crime in this country and the ease with which many criminals escape punishment. It is well established among the criminal element that the chances with the courts and the law are more than even and stand in favor of those who violate the law. A fair sample of the conditions that exist was given by Arthur V. Lashly, director of a survey by the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice, who addressed the American Bar Association at its Denver meeting this week.

Mr. Lashly pointed to the high cost of crime in this state, estimating that it amounts annually to 90 million dollars. Operation of state machinery for protection of human life and property involved a cost in a recent year of 10½ million dollars, he said. The indications were that the expense was increased. Mr. Lashly cited the record of dealing with offenders of all types in St. Louis in one year. It stands as glaring evidence of the opportunities to escape punishment which the criminal has. The number of crimes and offenses of all kinds was 13,444. In the year prosecution was attempted in only 1,420 of these cases. Fewer than one thousand of the latter were held for the grand jury, and only 624 were taken into the trial courts. The final result, after appeals, acquittals, paroles and other devices had been employed, was only 374 persons who actually were punished. There was no certainty, even in those cases, that the punishment would be adequate. For there still were loopholes. Mr. Lashly declared "there is no such thing as life imprisonment in Missouri; upon good behavior every prisoner is released on serving seven-twelfth of his sentence."

The plight of Missouri is not a peculiar condition among the states. In varying degrees the situation exists throughout the country. And the record of the whole country in crime is one of the amazing spectacles of present-day civilization. There is evidence of the awakening needed in the work of the association in Missouri, which is aimed at a system of more simple, swift and certain justice. When the machinery designed to protect society is taken in hand and made to operate with a minimum of expense and a maximum of effectiveness the criminal will get his due of punishment and there will be less incentive to acts of lawlessness.—K. WET ISSUE IS BIGGEST ONE

HEATED RACE IS ON IN MISSOURI CAMPAIGN

FIVE CANDIDATES IN

Two In Democratic and Three In Republican Parties—Priest Is Out And Out Wet.

Kansas City, Mo., July 17.—The closing days of Missouri's primary campaigns finds a heated race on with the wet issue predominating in the fight of six men who are seeking Republican and Democratic nominations as candidates for the United States Senate.

The world court, party adherence and farm relief, which were mentioned occasionally as the six candidates started their parade of the state, have been shunted to one side before the major issue of prohibition.

On the Republican side are Senator George H. Williams, who was appointed to office following the death of Senator Seldon P. Spencer, Blodgett Priest of St. Louis and David M. Proctor of Kansas City.

The Democratic race is between Representative Harry B. Hawes of St. Louis, and Judge Ewing B. Cockrell of Warrensburg. Willis H. Meredith of Poplar Bluff has withdrawn as a candidate for the long term in favor of Cockrell, but will run for the short term.

The race started out calmly enough this year but Missouri political fights—the state being made up of numerous intra-party factions—forced prohibition to the fore as the chief issue and it is the much discussed question before the voters in the final drives.

Blodgett Priest of St. Louis is the out and out "wet" on the Republican ticket. His platform is "light wines and beers" and he is making an aggressive campaign of the major cities to enlist support to his campaign. He has remained rather well away from rural Missouri where the sentiment, politically speaking, is dry. Proctor is bone-dry and a campaign is being made against Williams, however, as a result of a recent speech in which he said he was against the prohibition law but is for the enforcement of the prohibition law.

Hawes is the banner bearer for the wets on the Democratic ticket. He has announced a modification plank and is being able assisted by Democratic factions of both Kansas City and St. Louis.

Judge Cockrell is "dry" and is appealing heavily to the dry votes of the two major cities of the state as well as conducting a vigorous mail and speaking campaign in the rural sections.

The primaries are August 3 and there is indication now that a heavy vote will be polled.

Miss Margaret Donahue of the local office of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., left this afternoon on a two-weeks' vacation trip to Denver, Colorado Springs and other points in Colorado. She will also visit in Kansas City for a few days.

The TALE of KIDDIE KATYDID

by Arthur Scott Bailey

SPREADING THE NEWS

WHEN Freddie Firefly reached the swamp he found that the Frog family's singing party had already broken up. But luckily, Mr. Frog the tailor was the last one to leave. He was still poised on the bank of the sluggish stream, ready to plunge into the water and swim away, when Freddie Firefly dropped down upon a cattail and called him by name, flashing his light frantically so that Mr. Frog would be sure to notice him.

"Wait a moment!" cried Freddie. "I've something to say to you!"

"Out with it, then!" said Mr. Frog. "My time is valuable, you know. I ought to be back in my shop this moment; for I promised Paddy Muskrat I'd make him a policeman's uniform by tomorrow morning. And I haven't begun it yet."

"Why not?" asked Freddie, forgetting—for the moment—his own errand.

"He wants brass buttons," explained the tailor. "And I couldn't get any until tonight."

"But couldn't you go ahead without them?" Freddie Firefly inquired.

"Certainly not!" replied Mr. Frog. "I see you don't know much about making a policeman's suit. You start by laying the buttons in a row on the ground; and then you sew the cloth onto them. . . . That's my own invention—that method," he added with an air of pride. "And now, what was it you wanted to say to me?"

"I don't believe there's any use of my telling you, after all," Freddie Firefly replied. "You're going to be so busy that you won't have time to do an errand for me. I wanted you to give Mr. Crow a message."

"Yes—I'll be altogether too rushed to bother with it," said Mr. Frog. "I expect to be on the jump all night—and most of tomorrow, too."

"This message," Freddie Firefly went on, "was something about Kiddie Katydid. I found out his secret tonight. And I thought Mr. Crow ought to know about it."

Now, Mr. Frog was all ready to leap into the water. But when Freddie said that, the tailor promptly changed his mind.

"Kiddie Katydid's secret!" he repeated in a tone of amazement. "You don't mean to say you've discovered what it was that Katy did?"

"Never mind!" said Freddie. "I don't want to trouble you, Mr. Frog. I know you're too busy to bother your head with such things."

"Tut, tut, young man!" Mr. Frog cried. "I see you have something important to tell me. And since that is the case, I'll manage somehow to deliver your message to Mr. Crow, even if I have to disappoint a customer. Always oblige a friend! That's my motto!" said Mr. Frog.

"Very well, then!" Freddie Firefly replied. "I'll say what I was going to; but it doesn't concern that Katy person you just mentioned."

"Oh, it doesn't," the tailor echoed. "Then I don't know that I care to listen to you, after all. I thought you were going to explain about that mysterious lady that Kiddie's always singing about." He was sadly disappointed. And once more he turned toward the creek.

Hints and Helps for Farmers

by J. Ross Fleetwood County Extension Agent

The county agents visit to the cattle feeders' tour in Atchison County yesterday made him no less proud of that held in this county several weeks ago. The visit afforded grounds for comparison and also gave a number of ideas which may prove useful in the future.

The fact that the market is demanding a small, high-quality steer, not carrying too much fat was brought out forcibly at the meeting yesterday by the prices which were placed on the various bunches of cattle.

One bunch of 3-year-old cattle carrying considerable fat but of medium quality was appraised at $7.85, while a second bunch of yearlings, not carrying as much fat, but of a little higher quality, and weighing around 1,059, was appraised at $9.75.

Earl Vance, cattle buyer for Swift and Co., St. Joseph, stated that the market demand was for a carcass of good quality weighing 400 pounds or less. He said further that while there was seasonal demands for heavier carcasses than this, the time will probably never come when the year-round demand will be for the heavier carcass.

Mrs. Mary Paxton Keely, with the Atchison County Mail at Rock Port, and Miss Sarah Chiles, with the state club department, Columbia, will have charge of the handwork for girls at the Holachaway Camp to be held at Clearmont August 4, 5, and 6.

The leadership of these women will take form in some sort of work which the 4-H club girls can do at the camp and take home completed with them.

That much interest was aroused by the septic-tank demonstration held on the farm of Ernest Wray, Wednesday, was evidenced by the fact that eight men asked for blueprints for the construction of septic tanks on their farms. The facts that a workable septic tank which will last indefinitely can be built on the average farm for from fifteen to thirty dollars should make this efficient type of sewage-disposal system appeal to nearly all Nodaway County farmers.

Septic tanks are not only one of the greatest conveniences which the farmer can have in his home, but also safeguard the health of his family and the other people who reside in the communnity.

Any person interested in the matter may secure blueprints or information from the county agent's office. Perhaps there are many who were intending to attend the demonstration at the Elmer Froyd farm on Thursday, and these are welcome to obtain this information from the office in Maryville.

Are you a "bull" or "bear" on the corn market? The prospects for a corn crop in Nodaway County are as good if not better than they were last year. This same condition holds true over most of Missouri. Nebraska is extremely dry; Illinois corn has been injured severely by drouth; it is doubtful if Iowa will have as large a crop this year as usual. Figure it out for yourself.

At the end of an eight-hour ride in a day coach smoker, a man understands why some women dislike the smell of cigar smoke.

"I Am Delighted" Says Somerville at Country Club

"This is a marvelous spot."

The words came from A. Neil Somerville, former resident now living in Kansas City, as he stood on Number Four tee at the Maryville Country Club yesterday afternoon.

"Just look at that fairway," the Scotch brogue continued. "It's hard to realize that this is the same place we started on in December 1921, when a bunch of enthusiasts started a golf course in Maryville by sinking empty cigar cans for cups."

A Neil was particularly impressed by the fairways.

Aren't they wonderful," he queried as he started his characteristic swing preparatory to his drive. "They are surprisingly good and the entire course reflects the greatest possible credit on the various boards of directors, who in spite of a lot of opposition and a lot of hard knocks went ahead and turned a series of fields into a first class golf course."

Mr. Somerville smiled as he remembered the hectic time of the organization of the Maryville Country Club. He was its first president.

Asked about the clubhouse, he grimaced and said, "Words fail me."

Comparing this course with others on which he has played, he remarked that it was just a good, sporty course. And again he referred to the fairways. "They are amazingly good."

Mr. Somerville said that it seemed like coming home to return to Maryville. He was here last year, "but things have even changed a great deal in that short a time."

He will remain in Maryville for several days.

BOOKS

Worth-While Things For The Reader's Time

By Townsend Godsey.

The Ozark country of southern Missouri is rapidly coming into prominence both as place for real estate development and as a producer of literary persons. Many writers have been taking up their residences in the Ozarks and as a result some interesting pieces of writing have been produced lately. Most noteworthy of these is Rose Wilder Lane's book, "Hill Billy" which Harper & Brothers has published.

The author, while being of the hill folk by adoption only, has lived in the Ozarks for many years and has learned many things concerning the ways of the older order of hill people. She has written of the Ozarks before but never quite like she has done in "Hill Billy."

Abimelech Baird, a hill man of the Missouri Ozarks reaches the age of 21 and leaves his father's cabin on Baird's Peak and goes into Millersville when he starts to practice law. His knowledge of that profession is scant but his native hill sense and a shrewdness are principal factors in his ability to rise in the community.

Candor, dignity and passion for justice serve as splendid guides in law but have little value in love so Abe Baird, who comes to be something of an Ozark Abraham Lincoln, finds. He becomes infatuated with Bessie Miller, "a little scrap of prettyness an' no more" who blames her own misdeeds upon him who refuses to desert her. A driving climax brings about a situation whereby the lawyer marries a fine type of hill woman while Bessie runs away with Baird's chief enemy, the county's devious prosecuting attorney.

The author has written of a day different from the present and while the same types as are protrayed in "Hill Billy" exist in the Ozarks today the dialect has been altered somewhat in later years. She has written of the hill frolics and has set down portions of a few ballads.

OZARK BALLADS—by O. G. Harmon, published by the author at Mountain Grove, Mo.

A one-hundred page, paper bound volume prepared by O. G. Harmon contains a collection of ballads, some of which we found to be good and practically all of them interesting. Mr. Harmon's poems and ballads show a sincerity and an understanding of the Ozark people. "The Miner's Prayer", "The Dirty Dog-House" and "The Ozark Ruins" were things in the second volume which interested us.

Here is a book for boys, and girls too, for that matter. Mr. Crook had many interesting experiences in the Blue Ridge Mountains and these he has set down in book which contains no particular plot which is interesting because of Jack, the principal character, and his adventures in the hills. Jack and his uncle hunt, trap and learn many new things while on their tramps through the mountains all of which interests boys.

A 12-year old boy was given the book to read and his opinion of it was, "Boy! That's a keen book." Another lad took the book while there are now four others on the waiting list eager to borrow the copy that they, too, can share in Jack's adventures.

Statue of Ford Is Proposed in Brazil

Rio de Janeiro. — Although Henry Ford has never been in Brazil, his name will perhaps go down in history alongside that of General Rondon and other pioneers who are today pushing the vast line of Brazilian wilderness further back from the seacoast.

A newspaper in the city of Uberabinha, State of Minas Geraes, has originated the idea of erecting a statue to Henry Ford in that town.

The editor of the newspaper got in touch with all the Ford agencies throughout Brazil, and stressed his view that it being the starting point for all travel, into the westernmost states of Goyaz and Matto Grosso, the city of Uberabinha should possess as a traditional landmark, a statue in honor "of the man who devised the handy machine that has conquered Brazil's wilderness."

The idea met with general approval.

Anything that is standing still is getting ready to move backward.

Some fellows refuse to face the fact as long as they can borrow money.

Appreciation.

The Young Bride (looking in window of jewelry store)—George, I'd love to have that bracelet.

The Husband—I can't afford to buy it for you, dear.

The Bride—But if you could, you would, wouldn't you?

The Husband—I'm afraid not.

The Bride—Why?

The Husband—It isn't good enough, dear.

The Bride—Oh, you darling!

Service.

She—What have you ever done for women?

Congressman—I voted against the tax on cigarettes.

Query.

He—I love you and want you for my wife.

She—But are you sure your wife will like me?

Walter Allen Becomes Political In Hi-Y Summer Camp In Ozarks

Walter Allen, Maryville High School boy attending the Y. M. C. A. camp, Camp Ozark, at Hollister, Mo., has become quite the politician, according to his own admission in a letter to the Democrat-Forum and Tribune. Walter paints entrancing pictures of camp life in the Ozarks in the letter which follows:

That the Ozarks are known for their scenic value is not merely an advertising project for Missouri. It is great down here and the Ozarks make me glad that I am a Missourian. There is nothing here more fascinating or ideal as a campsite than the great hills in which nestles the Y. M. C. A. camp. It is bounded on one side by Lake Taneycomo and on the other by White river.

About sixty boys are here, representing many parts of Missouri. Maryville and Plattsburg are the only northwest Missouri towns represented. The spirit of fellowship and the atmosphere of the camp are dominating factors which make it most enjoyable.

I seem to be a regular politician down here, out for so many offices. Frankly speaking, somebody has been doing some secret pushing. I was appointed by the camp council as assistant editor of Shack Talk, the camp paper. A boy from Poplar Bluffs is editor. I was nominee for official member of the camp council, but a Joplin boy, who is a brother of Mrs. Roland Curnutt, won over me. On the date of this writing, I was one of five boys nominated as camp chief of in other words camp boss. The council and Mr. Liddle and the boss have complete responsibility of camp life. A boy from Tennessee got the place. I received second place, losing the election by two votes.

I understand I received strong support and got some real complimentary remarks. That is natural in political encounters. I was surprised even in being nominated, much less in running that Tennessee boy almost against the wall.

My work in Hi-y club is being used to great advantage here, especially when it comes to participation in devotional period. Already I have reaped a harvest of useful information that can be used in a practical sense in Hi-Y next fall.

Boat excursions, hiking, swimming, athletic stunts, campfire service, educational study and the Bible period make camp life worth while, in time and money and in the building of a strong mental, moral, physical and spiritual constitution.

The nights here are exceptionally cool and there is always a scramble for extra cover. We get up at 6 a. m. put on our bathing suits and take fifteen minutes of gymnastics on the lawn with the dew as cold as ice, and then we dip in Lake Taneycomo.

It's great, sure enough, and I'm grateful that it was possibe for me to attend and my only regret is that more of the Maryville boys could not attend, especially of the Hi-Y club.

Sincerely,
Walter Allen.

Exhaustion and Sunstroke Menace Should Be Guarded Against Now

Heat exhaustion is the commonest form of illness resulting from individuals' being subjected to high temperatures for long lengths of time. Most people have experienced it in milder forms. In its graver forms it is a very serious disease and not infrequently causes death. It frequently attacks children and people who have been in poor health. It finds a ready victom in the individual who is intemperate in his use of alcohol.

The symptoms begin with a feeling of giddiness and frequently of nausea. The legs feel unsteady, the patient looks pale and may become unconscious. Externally the body is cold and clammy. The temperature is below normal.

One of the oldest deseases on record is Heat Stroke, or Sun Stroke as it is more commonly called. It is usually brought on by direct exposure to the sun's rays in extremely hot weather, particularly if the person is exposed for a long period of time.

Its onset is sudden and in rare cases it seems to cause almost instantaneous death. Usually, however, it is ushered in with a terrific headache, dizziness, a feeling of oppression, and sometimes nausea and vomiting. Patients also complain that objects appear to them as being peculiar colors.

The victim of Sun Stroke looks altogether different from the heat exhaustion patient. In that condition the skin is cold and clammy; in Sun Stroke, the skin is hot and fiery. In the former condition the patients are pale; in Sun Stroke they are red. The temperature rises rapidly frequently going to 110 degrees.

Enough has been said of the seriousness of the disease of heat to show you the necessity of taking certain precautions in hot weather.

Wear clothing of thin texture to allow the perspiration to exaporate readily, and of light color to reflect the sun-s rays instead of absorbing them. Wear clothing as loose as possible, particularly about the neck, so as to avoid interference with the circulation.

As far as possible take things easy. Do not hurry. Don't run for street cars—wait for the next one. It is better to be late than to have to go to a hospital.

Don't eat too much in hot weather. Particularly do not eat hot things. Avoid pastry. Eat meat only once a day. Drink plenty of cool water, but no alcholic drinks.

Bathe frequently. Shower baths are particularly good. In hot weather avoid, as far as possible, staying out for long periods in the sun. If this cannot be avoided be sure to wear a hat, preferably a straw hat.

If you are called, in an emergency, to help someone who has been overcome with heat, summon a doctor as soon as possible. Then if the patient is cold and clammy, has a pale face, cover him with a blanket, give him a warm drink and put a hot water bag at his feet.

If on the other hand the patient's face is red put him in a cool place Apply ice to the head, give him a cool drink and sponge his extremeties until the doctor arrives.

The BOBCAT

BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS

Big Tim Burke, real estate operator, and known to his associates as a land pirate, discharges one of his young lieutenants called Pol Gaillard, because he is irritated by the latter's sleekness and nonchalant manner. Pol learns that his ex-boss covets a desirable piece of Long Island property owned by Professor Husted and that another land shark, Michael Cadrigan, is after the same bit of land. Cadrigan lives on the shore of Long Island sound with his step daughter, Veronica. His estate is across the bay from that of Professor Husted. The old professor lives like a hermit and Veronica is his only visitor. Cadrigan asks Veronica to discontinue calling on the old man, intimating that the professor's enemies may harm her. Noticing a sloop anchored opposite the house, Veronica suggests to her stepfather that they call on the owner. They are invited on board and their host introduces himself as Pol Gaillard, posing as an itinerant poet and artist.

Pol is invited to dine with the Cadrigans and through Veronica meets Professor Husted. While calling on the professor Pol's boat is cut adrift. He recovers it, but the next night an attempt is made to sink it. Professor Husted invites Pol to stay at his house. Pol accepts, but later goes back to his boat, as he feels his interest in the professor's affairs has disturbed the old man. Pol pays his dinner call on the Cadrigans. Veronica is out and Cadrigan receives him. During the conversation Pol uncovers his animosity toward Cadrigan and they quarrel.

That night, fearing an attack on the professor, Pol goes to Husted Point. He finds Veronica there.

INSTALLMENT XXXV.

AN OLD SCORE.

Pol answered Veronica's question in a calm, low tone.

"I took the liberty of telephoning Mr. Cadrigan because I intended to come here myself, Miss Veronica. Now that I'm here, I should advise that you go straight home."

"I shall do nothing of the sort. The professor has one of his heart attacks."

"Has a doctor seen him?"

"Yes, this afternoon. He says it's a functional disorder, the result of having become excited. That is all your fault. Why can't you mind your own business?"

"This happens to be my business. If I were the intentional cause of upsetting him, the least I can do is to stand by him. I shall stay here all night."

"You will do nothing of the sort. I am going to stay here all night myself. I told them at home that I was going to spend the night with Mrs. Tate."

"I have reason to think," said Pol, "that there is going to be another attempt tonight to persecute the professor. A more serious one than any so far."

"How did you learn that? What are you, any how? And what really brought you here?

"To pay a debt, Nica."

"What sort of debt, and what right have you to call me Nica? Nobody ever called me that but my fahter."

"I might call it a prophetic right, or that sort of kinship that exists between the victims of the same calamity. Will the sound of our voices disturb the professor?"

"No. The doctor said he must have at least ten hours of utter relaxation, and left an opiate that I gave him at eight o'clock. What makes you think there is going to be some attempt to molest him tonight?"

"Gulia Spinelli told me so. I met her on the road as I was walking back from your house. She was on her way to warn you."

"You seem to have got very chummy with Gulia. Then it is the Italians, after all?"

"No, it is not the Italians. It is Cadrigan."

Veronica did not answer. She walked into the living room, seated herself in the professor's big chair, dropped her forearms on its frayed rests, and stared at the junction of the wall and the ceiling. Pol, who had followed her, stood at the corner of the big table, his knuckles resting on it.

"Are you a detective or secret policeman or something?" Veronica asked lifelessly.

"No. My license to meddle in this affair has nothing to do with the law. On the contrary, it is against it."

"Then you've come to pay off some old score?"

"Say, rather, to collect payment for one, Nica. Your father's and mine."

Veronica gripped at the worn pads. "My father——"

Pol nodded. "I said just now that we were victims of the same calamity. Cadrigan is the calamity. He wiped my father out up there in the woods by a crooked deal—if you could call piracy crooked, but it was supported by some dirty work he tricked a clean man into doing for him. All that shall have to wait, Nica. When I show you the machinery of it, you will understand."

"When will that be?"

"Tonight. I'd like to spare you that, but I think it will be better in the end for you to see how the cogs engage and turn. Do you understand the workings of the differential of your car?"

"No, I don't. What are you driving at?"

"An illustration. Not one person in a hundred who rides in a car or even drives one has any clear idea of just how the differential works when taking a curve under power or braking on one. A mechanic might try in vain to explain what happens. But if he were to open the differential box and show you what was taking place inside it, you would see for yourself at a glance. That is what you are goinig to see tonight, I think."

Veronica stared at him with a frightened but fascinated look. Pol returned it with a faint but reassuring smile.

"I'm not sure I ought to do this. It may show something pretty terrible. Would you rather go home?"

"No. I'm not entirely surprised to learn that my step-father is behind this persecution of Professor Husted. If you can prove it, then go ahead and do so."

"He's behind a lot more than that, Nica. I don't see how there can be any danger for you, and I don't see just now how you could safely go back. Listen to that."

A sudden gust of wind roared through the big trees and wailed around the gables of the staunch old house. The branches flogged in a tormented way and there was a moaning in the chimney.

"Blowing too hard to last," Pol said. "It will die out before morning. You came over in your canoe?"

Veronica nodded. "After Mr. Cadrigan telephoned, I went over to Mrs. Tate's. I told her Professor Husted was ill and I could not bear the thought of his being here alone tonight. So I asked her to telephone to Luigi that I was going to spend the night with her and to bring over my things. Then just after dark I paddled over here."

"Strange that Mrs. Tate consented to that," Pol said. "It was blowing hard even then."

"She protested, but I managed to persuade her."

"Her own interests lean your way," said Pol. "She hopes you may be able to persuade Mr. Husted to unlock his property and live more as a man of his position should."

"He can't go on like this," said Veronica.

"I don't think that he is going to much longer. Things are coming to a head."

"What do you mean?" Don't be so mysterious."

"I shall not try to explain the differential. I want you to see its workings on the last curve. There have been a great many dangerous, treacherous curves. Mr. Cadrigan will try to pass me on this one and crowd me over the brink."

"You—you frighten me. Have you quarreled with him?"

"We disagreed. He accused me of trying to blackmail him. I told him it was not the word, as nothing that he could do could save him from me now."

Veronica frowned. "Do you know what I think?"

"Perfectly well. That I am either one of those silly fools who like to startle and mystify and persuade a listener and themselves at the same time that they are wonder workers, whether the miracle comes to pass or not. Or else that I am sheer fraud. I should say you believe me something or both."

"Well, and so I think you are," said Veronica. "No doubt you are getting a lot of silly amusement out of this."

"Like a small boy who half fascinates, half terrifies the little girls by pretending he can hypnotize them."

"O, so you admit it?" said Veronica.

"I'll admit a sneaking fondness for theatrical effects. Most juvenile natures like to shock and astonish people."

"Foolish people," said Veronica. "I may be one of them, but I'm not entirely a fool. I've had a sample of your dramatic talent. When you hounded my groom the other day, took your time about it, instead of doing the obvious, manly thing, which would have been to walk over to where he was hiding and ask him in a sensible straightforward fashion what he was doing there. But, no. You want to show off."

BAR UNFIT MOTORISTS TO REDUCE PERILS

Physical Defects of Motor-Vehicle Operators Should Be Eliminated, If They Threaten Public Safety, Before Any License Is Issued.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Last year the automobiles owned by American citizens killed 25,000 human beings. It is almost too terrible to believe.

But let me tell you the rest of the heart-breaking story. In addition to those who died, 700,000 were more or less seriously injured as a result of automobile accidents. Most of such fatalities and injuries are preventable.

Recently there was a meeting of the American Road Builders' Association. The retiring president, Mr. Wm. H. Connell, said, "Making the highways safe is the biggest problem of the day."

He pointed out the importance of equipping the highways with signals and adequate policing. "While drastic measures must be taken to eliminate reckless driving," he said, "a great deal of money must also be spent in the elimination of dangerous conditions on the public highways."

"Many of the highways are entirely inadequate from the safety standpoint for modern traffic, having been originally designed for horse-drawn vehicles. The elimination of hazards should be carried on jointly with the construction of new roads, and through the improvement of those already constructed."

The misleading thing about the figures I have given, is that they do not begin to cover the suffering and cost caused by injury or death. The immediate family, an average of five perhaps, must mourn, and dozens of friends and neighbors are numbered among those touched by these unnecessary accidents.

In considering the cause for automobile accidents, we must not overlook the carelessness and recklessness of many drivers. It is a daily wonder to me that more people are not hurt.

If you love your fellow man, you will not conduct yourself in such manner as to endanger his life. If you have no regard for your own safety, at least you should consider his.

I served as a member of a medical draft board during the World War. It was shocking how many men presented themselves for examination who were physically unfit. What was more amazing was the number of men engaged in the operation of public utilities who were deaf or otherwise defective. But, worse than this, there were many who had exceedingly defective sight.

All applicants for driver's licenses should be required to submit to enough of a physical examination as to ensure the safety of the public from accidents which might result in consequence of physical defects.

This examination would serve a double purpose. It would eliminate the unfit. But, even better than this, it would call attention to the defects, most of which are removable.

For your own good you should see your doctor at regular intervals and find out if you are fit. Early discovery of defects will permit such treatment as will overcome them.

Answer To Health Queries.

E. F. O'H. Q.—What treatment do you advise for bronchitis?

A.—Build up the general health so that you will not be susceptible to colds and coughs. A good general tonic should be helpful. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

J. P. M. Q.—Will an X-ray reveal adhesions?

2.—Is it advisagle to take yeast when it causes slight gases?

A.—It may or may not, depending upon the extent of the trouble.

2.—If yeast does not seem to agree with your system it would not be wise to continue to take it. If you watch your diet and are careful to keep the intestinal tract clear you should notice improvement generally.

"INTERESTED." Q.—It is possible for a thin person to have fatty degeneration of the heart?

A.—I do not believe so.

Callaway County Has Valuable Clay Supply

25 Per Cent of Nation's Locomotive Lining Is Taken From Huge Missouri Deposits.

Fulton, July 17.—With rail transportation, the clay deposits in the southern part of Callaway County should furnish one of the country's largest sources of clay materials. The greatest clay resources of the county lie south of Fulton to the Missouri river, especially in the Hams Prairie and Mokane districts. The southeast portion is the most valuable.

At present the Fulton Fire Brick Company is trying to negotiate a deal with the city of Fulton to provide an electric current through this region. If this project is adopted, an extensive development of Callaway County clay will be attempted.

The exact depth of the clay deposits cannot be definitely determined. Most of the clay in this region lies in strips rather than in deep mines as in Audrain County. A singular fact noted is that the clay is the same depth from the surface, no matter how high the elevation. When digging for clay on a high hill, the laborers were surprised to discover that the substance was the same distance from the surface as on the level plain.

The Fulton Brick Company turns out more locomotive and fire-box lining bricks than any other concern of its kind in the country. It is estimated that this company provides about 25 per cent of the total locomotive lining used throughout the United States.

About 55,000 bricks are produced daily. Only pure clay and water are used in the process. The company employs about 250 workers in a plant of approximtely five acres. The yearly output yields $600,000. The Chicago & Alton Railroad furnishes transportation and maintains a track in the Company yards.

Eigheen kilns heated to about 400 degrees centigrade raise the bricks to the proper hardness. High grade soft coal from western Keptucky and Illinois is used. Previously the company mined its own coal in the vicinity, but this was found to be too rich in sulphate and ash contents to be effective.

The chemical composition of the clay consists of: Silica 52.5 per cent; Aluminum 44.66; Iron Oxide .22; Lime none; Magnesia .40; Titanium 1.62; Soda .42; and Potash .54.

The plant started as a pottery about forty years ago. In 1917 the fire brick company was established. The present officers of the corporation are: President, L. U. Nickell; general manager, C. O. McManee; and secretary-treasurer, T. B. Jones.

Idleness Is Blamed for Much Insanity

Fulton, July 17.—Is physical labor a good cure for insanity?

According to Dr. O. M. Briggs, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane, nine-tenths of the unbalanced minds are caused by not working off excess energy. It is his belief that a certain amount of physical labor will lessen the nervous tension of the individual and bring restful sleep at night.

Putting the inmate to sleep by giving him plenty of hard manual work, is an innovation at the hospital. Dr. Biggs and his corps of specialists are careful to give each patient enough work to insure him a good night's sleep, without causing undue fatigue.

As one enters the hospital, he is impressed with the convenient arrangements made. There are no elevators or windows to invite disaster. The needs of the 1500 patients are carefully administered to by the trained corps of assistants. Tennis courts and places to dance, smoke, and chat are at the convenience of the patients in proportion to their needs.

A workshop for the making of baskets, chairs, brooms, carvings, and other light work, has been equipped. The women may sew and make clothing articles.

The hospital, itself, is modern and sanitary. Proper ventilation of bed rooms and sleeping porches is attended to. A modern dairy produces the milk supply. Administering the proper food to suit individual needs is vital in effecting a cure, for, given all the food they can eat, the patients are soon satisfied.

Although the state appropriates a very small amount, the hospital is self-sufficing. Beginning October 1, 1926, the county fees per inmate will be increased from twenty to forty dollars per month.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT—Prepared by the Williams-for-Senator Club for which $5.00 has been paid.

"Count Me With My Own People of the West"

Senator George H. Williams, in his speech at California, Mo., Saturday, June 26, told of his vote in favor of the McNary farm bill and discussed the effect of the tariff on the industrial East. He said:

"It is time for the West to obtain the benefit of the same kind of a policy. When we of the West make our demands, we expect the industrial section of the East and the Northeast to meet them.

"If the Republican party does not give what the West demands, there will arise a question whether the Republican party is big enough to solve the question. I do not think a break will come. But if a break does come, count me with my own people of the West."

This statement was taken to mean Senator Williams placed the future of agricultural welfare of the West above his own party; that he was prepared to go to war with the industrial Republicanism of the East to obtain a fair deal for the West.

Primary, Tuesday, August 3.

FARM GLIMPSES

(By BILLY TILSON)

We were up in Independence township yesterday in the vicinity of Gaynor, Orrsburg and Parnell, and most fields showed great prospects for a good yield of corn. Oats and wheat are going to make a fair yield, and in talking to a few of the farmers they say that crop conditions look better than in the past several years at this time of the year.

Dick McMahan, north of Parnell, commenced yesterday cutting his 70 acre field of oats and says the yield will be satisfactory. He has a splendid crop of corn.

Colonel Chas. Evans south of Parnell was putting up his timothy and clover hay yesterday. He says it will make one and a half tons to acre.

Fred Breit, south of Parnell, was badly scalded on one of his legs from the knee down to his ankle when a kettle of hot water turned over on him. It is causing him considerable pain.

Henry Fien, south of Parnell, was finishing cutting his oats yesterday. Henry has a load of hogs that are ready for the market and a large bunch of spring pigs that are making a fine growth.

John Blackburn, south of Parnell, says he has the best prospect for corn that has grown on his farm for a good many years and if weather conditions are favorable will have a bumper yield.

Steve Parker, northwest of Parnell, has a field of corn that was planted on the 8th day of June, that is waist high and is being layed-by, although it is only the second time over.

Peter Tunnell, northwest of Quitman, finished cutting his field of oats Wednesday and is putting up his second crop of alfalfa. It is making a good yield. Mr. Tunnell also has a fine prospect for corn.

Dale Ashford, west of Quitman, finished cutting his 70 acre field of oats Thursday. They were not very heavy on the ground, as sweet clover had been sown with them in the spring. Dale has a great prospect for corn and there are other fields in that locality that are laboring under their heavy burden.

The farmers west and north of Quitman all report a good prospect for corn. They say the wheat and oats crop will not make a heavy yield, that the second cutting of alfalfa will be good and timothy hay will be light.

Rhodes Charmichael, northwest of Maryville, has torn down his farm house and is erecting on the site a modern dwelling. The foundation is being layed and the house will be rushed to completion as soon as possible.

George Burch and family, southwest of Pickering, returned a few days ago from a ten days trip up in Minnesota, where he visited most of the time with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davey and family, who formerly lived near Pickering but moved to Minnesota twenty-five years ago. George several years emigrated to that state, locating in Martin county, near Sherborn, but four years ago was as long as he could keep his feet off Nodaway county soil. He says there was a good prospect for corn most all the way on his travels.

Weather Is Erratic But Not Exceptional

Coolest In Some Sections Of Country For Many Years.—Importance of May Temperatures Emphasized.

The weather this year is erratic but not exceptional. U. S. weather Bureau officials said today.

The weather is tempermental, and never steady along the average, they pointed out, contrasting this year's cool spring east of the Rocky Mountains with official records showing that the Pacific coast and great northwest's season was hotter than the average by just about the same number of degrees.

These officials, probably the only exceptions to Mark Twain's remark that "everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it," today listed figures showing the season was coldest in nine years. In March and April most of the nation east of the Rockies averaged 4 to 6 degrees below normal in temperature. May was about normal, and June was cool in the east and normal in the great plains.

Back in 1917 the weather was similarly from 2 to 4 degrees below normal in April and May and ten years further back in 1907, the entire nation was 6 degrees below the average for most of the month of May. May is given such importance because of its weather's effect on the growing crops. The crops in those years, as well as those this year, were retarded badly. This year's crops on the average were more than 6 per cent below normal in development on July 1, indicating lower crops of practically every commodity except wheat. The midwest and northwest wheat belt was treated to a spell of warm weather during the subnormal temperatures in other parts of the country, and a bumper crop is now being harvested as a result.

The weather bureau refuses to make forecasts of the weather for the rest of the summer on the basis of present uncomfortable conditions, because of the lack of scientific data as to the direct causes of the weather changes.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, July 17—Grain prices again moved upward on the Chicago Board of Trade today but the day's top prices were considerably shaded by week-end profit taking. Wheat closed from ⅛ to ⅞ above the final figures yesterday. There was little change in the conditions surrounding the market, reports from crop experts in the Northwest all being pessimistic.

Cash wheat prices were steady to a cent higher in the face of the heavy movement in the Southwest, and a slight improvement in export business was noted.

Corn advanced early in the session and held most of them through a quiet day, closing ¼ to ⅞ cents higher. There was a general tendency to watch for further crop advices.

Oats, too, registered fractional gains and held them at the close.

Provisions showed no change from yesterday's levels.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER
By Charles P. Stewart.
NEA Service Writer.

Washington. — Pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission—it was argued recently and the commissioners are thinking it over now—is what looks like a very dinky little railroad case, which, nevertheless, involves considerably more money than the war debt all Europe owes to the United States.

The railroad is the St. Louis & O'Fallon, a 9-mile line running out of East St. Louis.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has tentatively valued this road at $850,000. The road's management contends that it is worth more than twice the amount of the commission's estimate.

Split With Government.

The point is:

According to law, a railroad which earns more than 6 per cent net profit on its par value must divide the excess evenly with the federal government.

On an $850,000 valuation the St. Louis & O'Fallon earns considerably more than 6 per cent and has something to divide with the government.

On a basis of more than twice $850,000, it makes nothing like 6 per cent and has nothing to divide.

The question, obviously, is one of valuations. How should they be made?

The President's Conference Committee, an organiaztion of the executives of all the important railroads in the country, which realiy argued the St. Louis & O'Fallon's case before the Interstate Commerce Commission, contends that a railroad's original cost has nothing to do with what it is worth today—that it is worth now as much as it would cost to reproduce it at present high prices.

Disagree on Basis.

The National Conference of Valuation, an organization of railroad workers, shippers and communities served by railroads, which appeared before the commission in opposition to the President's Committee, maintains that the railroads are entitled to an undivided 6 per cent only on "the amount reasonably and honestly invested" in them.

The final decision on this valuation question in the St. Louis & O'Fallon case will set a precedent for all the railroads in the United States, which immediately explains why all of them are so much interested.

YOUNG FOLKS AT HOME NOW

KELSO PARK HELPS SOLVE OLD PROBLEM.

A "MECCA" FOR MANY

Opened Just One Month Ago, Grant City Establishment Has Attracted Several Thousand.

The benefits of a public park to any community are clearly demonstrated in the case of the Kelso Park at Grant City.

Opened just one month ago, this park has attracted persons from throughout Northwest Missouri and Southwest Iowa. Especially on Sundays has the park proved a "Mecca" for amusement seekers in this section of the country.

Representatives of the Democrat-Forum and Tribune visited the Kelso Park yesterday afternoon with a view to ascertaining just what it has meant to Grant City and vicinity.

Last Sunday, Mr. Kelso said, about 2,500 persons visited the park, which has a swimming pool, ferris wheel, merry-go-round, dance hall and a large picnic ground. The park proper contains about twenty acres and Mr. Kelso spent about $30,000 for equipment.

Next spring he plans to make a ten-acre lake for boating and fishing. He is also contemplating adding several other rides, such as roller coaster, etc.

Dances are being held at the hall every Wednesday and Saturday nights. All attractions are open on Sunday except the dance hall. The ministers of Grant City are heartily co-operating in the enterprise, Mr. Kelso said, and it is not at all unusual to see several of them at the park on week days and Sunday afternoons.

The park has aided in solving an age-old problem of how to keep the "young folks" at home on Sundays. Prior to the opening a month ago, Mr. Kelso said, Grant City boys and girls as well as others would joy ride to places miles from Grant City to find amusement and recreation. Now they go to the park to swin, ride on the ferris wheel or merry-go-round or just for a picnic. The "young folks" have found amusement and recreation at home and the distant city is no longer the lure it once was.

There has been some agitation for a public park and the one at Grant City is a striking example of what it can accomplish in a community.

St. Louis Leader Will Support Gantt

Committeeman of That City Refuses To Boost Ristine Candidacy.

St. Louis, Mo., July 17.—Lack of unanimity in the Democratic city committee over its recent action in indorsing Col. Carl L. Ristine of Lexington for the Democratic nomination for justice of the supreme court was indicated when John T. Tatten, committeeman from the Fourth ward, announced that he would support Judge Ernest S. Gantt of Mexico.

The action of the committee which some Democrats supporting Gantt now say was taken without a majority of the committee being present, was a part of a strong political drive to create the impression that Ristine had the party organization of St. Louis and Kansas City solidly behind him, and thus was certain of nomination. It was the expectation that this would have the effect of obtaining additional support for Ristine in the rural sections of the state.

While no member of the committee other than Tatten has announced opposition to Ristine, it is reported that before the primary there will be others.

"My decision to support Judge Gantt," said Tatten, "is based upon the fact that the bar of St. Louis and of the state has indorsed him by an overwhelming majority. I am not a lawyer and do not presume to have the information to judge which of the two candidates is the better qualified for the position. I believe the lawyers of the state are in better position to pass upon that question.

"I believe that nominations for judgeships should be on the basis of qualification rather than basis of political influence, and, acting in that belief, I intend to use my influence to uphold the view of a vast majority of the bar of the state, which has approved the candidacy of Judge Gantt."

Merchants Win From Junction Team, 9 to 1

Sixth Frame Was Lucky Inning For Local Team, Six Runs Being Tallied In The Frame.

The Maryville Merchants baseball team won from the Burlington Junction nine yesterday at Burlington Junction, 9 to 1. The game was plainly in Maryville's favor all the way, although there was no scoring until the sixth inning.

It was in this inning that the first Maryville batter up singled and successive bunts and sacrifices netted six scores before the half inning ended.

Burlington Junction scored its run also in the sixth inning.

A poor crowd attended the game. Buhler, Maryville pitcher, pitched an exceptionally good game and was given good support.

The line-up for Maryville was: Laughlin, c; Buhler, p; Iba, 1b; Mayes, 2b; Lyle, ss; Arthur, 3b; England, lf; Barnes, cf; Wasson, rf.

Tomorrow the locals play at Westboro.

Delaney Wins Title Off Paul Berlenbach

Verdict of Judges Unanimous in 175-Pound Fist Class Championship Last Night.

New York, July 17—Jack Delaney, light heavy weight pride of Bridgeport, Conn., won the world's 175-pound championship last night when he won a judge's decision over Paul Berlenbach in a gruelling 15-round contest at the Brooklyn National League ball park.

A stirring rally in the last four rounds gave Delaney the crown. Seemingly exhausted by the tremenduous punches of the champion, Delaney suddenly came to life and in one of the most sensational comebacks in modern fisticuffs, knocked the crown from Berlenbach's head with a 2-fisted attack which tired Berlenbach and caught him wholly unprepared for the onslaught.

Commissioner James A. Farley announced that the verdict of the judges was unanimous.

The big baseball park appeared to be filled completely as the referee called the fighters to the center of the ring for instructions. The weights were announced as: Berlenbach 174¼. Delaney 166½.

Accident Not Caused by Speed, Says Paper

(From the Sheridan Press.)

There are some garbled accounts of the auto accident near Harmony church recently, and since one paper gave the cause as reckless driving, which is incorrect, we give below the facts:

The occupants of the car were Bert Stickleman of Bedford and Miss Fidella Rowen of Sheridan. They were on their way to Maryville where Miss Fidella is attending college. Miss Rowen was driving when another car turned the corner, just south, meeting them with glaring headlights, blinding them till they could not see the ditch which had caved off at the edge of the road. Miss Fidella applied the brakes, bringing the car almost to a stop, but it went into the ditch and turned over upon them pinning them both under the car. The ditch was about 10 feet deep with some old farm machinery at the bottom. Mr. Stickleman was thrown on this, running a bolt through his leg just above the knee; also breaking three ribs and seriously injuring his right arm. Miss Rowen was severely bruised.

Hearing their cries for help, the man driving the car they had met, stopped and came back, and Rev. Underwood, pastor of the Harmony church and members of his congregation came down and lifting the car took them up to the parsonage where they did all they could for their injuries.

Mr. Stickleman called a car from Bedford which took Miss Fidella on to Maryville and himself back home.

The item in the Maryville paper stated it "was rumored that the accident was caused by reckless driving" should not have been worded in that way. The cause was the glaring headlights of the approaching and the cavein at the roadside. Had the car been going fast the accident would probably have proven fatal to both.

John Price, jr., and Raymond Murrin left today for the northern lakes where they will spend a week's vacation. The trip is being made by automobile.
